SUFFRAGETTES WIN EIGHT OFFICES IN UNIVERSAL CITY

First Election in World's Only Motion Picture City, a Victory for the Fair Sex.

Governed by a trio of political factions with suffragettes predominating in all of the principal executive offices except that of mayor, Universal City, Cal., the only municipality in the world inhabited exclusively by moving picture actors and actresses and people otherwise devoted to the producing of motion pictures, presents a strange and unusual appearance as the result of the first city election on May 20.

Aubrey M. Kennedy, Democratic candidate for mayor, won over Lois Weber, suffrage candidate, with a total of 219 votes. Miss Weber was given 215 votes, and immediately protested the election, and filed a request for a recount. Judges of the election have withheld an answer until the municipal affairs of the new city are settled.

Other Democratic candidates elected are: James Dayton, corporation counsel; R. L. White, auditor; Otis Turner, health commissioner; Al. E. Christie, park commissioner.

The suffragettes, although failing in their efforts to secure absolute control of the moving picture city, obtained sufficient backing to give them almost wholly the control of officials representing the executive section of the new administration. Suffragettes elected are: Phyllis Gordon, treasurer; Grace Conard, assessor; Laura Oakley, police chief; Jennie Macpherson, police judge; Edna Maison, alderman; Margarita Fischer, fire commissioner; Jas. Van Trump, street commissioner, and Mae Costello, chairman of the board of censorship.

With this galaxy of city offices within their power, the women are confident of holding the whiphand of the administration, and predict a thoroughly suffrage reign.

The diversity of party affiliations manifested in the results of the election has already "started things." The one Progressive candidate, R. M. Granville, who was elected to the office of tax collector, leaves that faction particularly weak in its hold upon the administration. The Democrats, with five representatives on the governing body, have mapped out an exhaustive group of laws and by-laws for governing the municipality. The suffragettes are equally determined that their ideas and policies shall go into force, and with Edna Maison as alderman, predictions are made that the actresses will run things pretty much to suit themselves.

Party alliances have been laid aside by common consent to permit the formation of plans for the manufacture of moving pictures under municipal jurisdiction. This is the most difficult task confronting the administration, and to reach an amicable settlement of the various political and official questions involved in the drafting of laws, each faction has agreed to banish for the time all personal inclinations and wishes to bring about the results desired.

While plans are under way to govern the production of pictures by city laws, the entire world is awaiting with impatience the outcome of one of the most novel innovations in the history of the industry—a commercial city maintained exclusively by one corporation, the Universal Film Manufacturing company of New York.

Foley Kidney Pills do not contain habit forming drugs and are tonic in acting, quick in results. They will help any case of kidney trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. Dr. Stone's Drug Store.

GRADUATES RECEIVE THEIR DIPLOMAS

Exercises of Great Interest Are Given by Sacred Heart Pupils at Grand Opera House.

The final exercises in observance of the Golden Jubilee or fiftieth anniversary of the Sacred Heart academy were held before a record-breaking audience in the Grand opera house last evening. The program of the evening, which was of a high order, was only marred by the absence of Archbishop Alexander Christie, who was called back to his home in Portland at the last moment. "Valse Chantee" from Arditi, was the opening number and was perfectly rendered by twenty-one young ladies of the academy. Following this the Misses Louise Berndorfer, Katherine Lynch, Emma Oblasser, Helen Barr, Lucille Jaskoski and Gertrude Campbell rendered a very pretty piano duet with three instruments.

Crowning of Alma Mater.
The crowning of the Alma Mater was the next feature of the program. The crowning of the Alma Mater is played with scenes laid in and about the pleasures of student life and the final triumph of all their labors. The play covered a space of four acts with the Golden Jubilee spirit very neatly woven through its many scenes. A very pretty sight was the final crowning of the Alma Mater when some 200 girls, all beautifully attired, appeared to perform that ceremony. Those carrying the prominent roles were:

"Golden Jubilee," Miss Rose Sullivan, a graduate; "Alma Mater," Miss Margaret McGuire; "Eulalie," Miss Lucille Jaskoski; "Hope," Miss Eva Nelson; "Angel of Sacrifice," Miss Helen Barr; "Religion," Miss Luoma Wiedmer; "Angel of Frolic," Miss Ruth Cooper.

Pretty Violin Selection.

Immediately at the conclusion of the drama a very pretty selection was given by the Misses Marie Campbell, first violin; Leonidine Eckerlen, second violin; and Emma Oblasser, cello. The Misses Berndorfer, Emma Oblasser and Lucille Jaskoski then rendered a selection on the piano.

Next followed the presentation of the diplomas to the members of the graduating class, Miss Lucille Jaskoski, Latin academic course; Miss Agnes Lynch and Miss Rose Sullivan, of Spokane, both from the English academic course, by Father A. A. Moore, of St. Joseph's church.

Judge P. H. D'Arcy was then introduced by Father Moore, and in a very pleasant and eloquent manner congratulated the graduates as well as the sisters of Sacred Heart academy upon their success in imparting knowledge to others. Judge D'Arcy recalled the days of 50 years ago when, as a boy, he first attended the school. He then complimented the entertainers of the evening upon the way they handled their several parts.

Hunger Breaks Strike.

(UNITED PRESS LEADS WIRE.)

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 13.—The pangs of hunger today forced 1200 railroad construction camp laborers, who struck Tuesday for increased pay and better working conditions to return to work. One hundred and sixty others, including 60 organizers for the Industrial Workers of the World, were deported from the camp this morning. The strikers slept in the open for two nights, and were without food for practically 48 hours.

REVENUE CUTTER IS VERY UNIQUE COURT

Sturdy Little Ship Leaves Once a Year for Far North to Hear Grievances of People.

Washington, June 13.—Unique among the chancelleries of the earth is the cabin-court of the United States revenue cutter, Thetis. Once a year this sturdy little ship is sent far into the frozen north where the Eskimos, miners, traders, fishermen and others, may air their grievances before a representative of Uncle Sam's judiciary.

Under the northern lights and the midnight sun, in the cabin of the Thetis, these people bring their difficulties and legal tangles to be unraveled. The Thetis has gained the title of the "floating court of the rough Alaskan seas," and among the outlaws it is known as the "Terror."

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo today signed orders which designate the Thetis to open court for the third judicial district, embracing the Bering sea islands and Alaskan ports, Valdez, July 13. On board will be Judge Peter D. Overfield, selected by Attorney General McReynolds to preside and his assistants, Lieutenants Frank L. Austin, Charles F. Selter and Warner K. Thompson, of the Revenue Cutter Service. During the court's session these men will be United States commissioners. Lieutenants Thomas A. Shanley, Clarence H. Dench and Stephen S. Yeandle will assist in the capacity of deputy United States marshals.

The difficulties that beset the officials of the floating court are many and varied. There are no police in that country. When an offender hears that the Thetis has reached port he generally takes to the hills and the officers of the court generally pursue. Frequently they are captured and prosecuted, but often they are able to evade the officers by remaining in concealment until word is received that the court has sailed. Officials of the Revenue Cutter service in Washington who have served in judicial capacities aboard the Thetis say that a general exodus of natives to the interior commences every time the ship touches at Point Barrow, Port Clarence, or any other of the principal ports of the far north.

Under the Eskimo laws it is the custom for parents to maintain control of their children even after they are married. Consequently, the number of divorce cases and domestic quarrels that are heard every year is astounding. Mothers who are dissatisfied with their daughters' husbands or their sons' brides bring their troubles before the presiding judge. Of course, the wives and husbands themselves are given equal privileges.

Once upon a time, it appears in the Thetis' docket, there lived in a little village on St. Lawrence Island an Eskimo famed for his strength and prowess, who stole another Eskimo's wife. The wife stealer had swiped other wives and had made it hot for the bereaved husbands who tried to get their mates back. This Eskimo, realizing his physical weakness, and not wishing to suffer bodily harm through any attempt to recover a mere wife waited until the Thetis touched port with the court aboard, and asked justice. Captain Henderson, at that time in command of the ship, put ashore to arrest the wife stealer, but that worthy had taken to the hills and could not be found. But St. Lawrence island has never again been troubled by his depredations.

SAY DIVORCE IS CRYING NEED OF ENGLAND NOW

(UNITED PRESS LEADS WIRE.)

London, June 13.—Declaring there are between 60,000 and 70,000 certified lunatics in England who are bound by the marriage tie and whose wives or husbands, as the case may be, are doomed to a life of celibacy, Lady Willoughby de Broke, vice president of the Divorce Law Reform union, today announced that Sir David Brynmor Jones has consented to introduce in parliament a bill which will extend the grounds of every absolute divorce proceeding. Lady Willoughby today explained the proposed changes.

"We base our demands for the changes on the general ground of human happiness and morality which cannot be served under the present laws. It is true that legal separations which prevent remarriage are granted for persistent cruelty, continued desertion, habitual inebriety, neglect to maintain, etc., but this is not enough. It is preposterous to demand that innocent victims of drunkards, wife beaters or lunatics, be forced into a life of celibacy or immorality. We maintain that whatever justifies life-long separation also justifies absolute divorce with the royal commission which recently completed an exhaustive inquiry into this question that absolute divorce decrees should be granted for infidelity, desertion for three years, cruelty, insanity after five years imprisonment, habitual drunkenness found incurable after three years, and imprisonment for life."

TALKS ON THRIFT.

No. 24.—Thrift and Temperance.

"Apply to the masses of men any of the tests that indicate success or failure in life, progress or stagnation, valuable or worthless citizenship, and none more clearly than thrift, will separate the temperate, well behaved, respected and useful from the unsatisfactory member of society."—Andrew Carnegie.

At one of the lectures on "Thrift," held at Cooper Institute, New York, last winter, under the auspices of the Savings bank section of the American Bankers association, a woman in the audience rose and said:—"I know a man who earns $10.50 a week and has a wife and five children. How can he save any money?"

The lecturer admitted that in such a case there did not seem much margin left for saving. But right then a workingman got up and said:—"I've a brother who gets only $10.50 a week and he has brought up five children, too, but he sends a dollar an da half a week for rum."

Now, in all probability neither of those heads of families is in a position to warrant his saving any portion of his wages, because the income in proportion to the size of the family is not large enough for really decent living in the city. But the point is, how much worse off the second man and his family must be because he spends so large a proportion of his meagre earnings for "taht which is not bread."

Nobody can deny that intemperance is the main cause of poverty. The people of this country spend a million dollars a year for drink—about $100,000,000 more than for all the necessities of life. It is estimated that the billion dollars paid over the country for drink in a year is only about half of the material damage caused, the other half being spent for the various institutions the public must maintain because of the widespread use of intoxicants.

An official investigation by the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics of Labor showed that 47 per cent of the inmates of almshouses were there directly or indirectly because of the liquor habit, and this is typical of the results from similar investigations in many other states. The large amount of money paid into the treasuries of states and municipalities by liquor dealers does not nearly equal the colossal material waste due to this traffic.

It is interesting to note that large employers of labor not only encourage their employees to save, but they also very strongly discourage the use of alcoholic beverages in order to increase the efficiency of their working force.

This is one of the main points of the economic argument for temperance as an aid to thrift and getting on in the world.
